- Two of Hungary's largest State-owned industrial plants in the Budapest vicinity - the MAVAG railroad engine shops, and the shipyards at Obuda - are now producing exclusively for the USSR.
- The MAVAG plant has recently started to build special freight engines with convertible axles which can be fitted for use on both Soviet and European gauge tracks. Finished engines are marked with USSR symbols and emblems.
- The Obuda shipyard builds new ships and barges, and repairs old ones. The director, the engineers, shop foremen, and all office workers, are Soviet citizens. Only the laborers are Hungarian. All work is completed in the yard including the painting of Soviet names on the vessels.
